Great Successes Claimed by the French.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—La Patrie says semi-officially that McMahon in carrying his movement has had several engagements with the enemy, in all of which he has been successful. He effected the crossing of the Meuse safely. At Longwy he gained a victory. The Prussians were defeated after a desperate struggle and took refuge in the territory of Luxemburg, where they had to be disarmed [illegible] obliged to remain. [illegible] information comes from French representatives at Luxemburg. It is plain from the situation of Longwy, Thionville and Metz that the plans of McMahon have so far been successfully executed.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—[illegible] reports that McMahon has totally destroyed the left wing and centre of the Prussians, and that their losses were enormous, and that only the right wing was able to retreat in good order.

The Figaro says that Bazaine in one of his battles around Metz entrapped the Prussians, some twenty-five thousand strong, in Jaumont Quarries, led by spies disguised as peasants. His cavalry fell on the rear, surprised them, and [illegible] able to wheel. The Prussians were cut down and suffered terribly. Bazaine was greatly [illegible] that this should have been reported at Paris as a victory.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

Dispatch from Munich.

MUNICH, Sept. [illegible]—The Bavarian Minister [illegible] Bavarian Corps [illegible] battalion [illegible] guns.

Further Accounts.

[illegible] September 1.—[illegible] the Prussians towards Sedan. The French are at [illegible]

[illegible] reports [illegible]

[illegible] September 2, 10 A.M.—[illegible] the Prussians were repulsed in an attack on McMahon [illegible] sharp fighting.

The Prussians attacked the French in front and rear. The French captured thirty guns and [illegible] prisoners. The Prussians are reported to have been driven toward Belgium.

LONDON, September 2, Noon.—Another dispatch says the Prussians were victorious, but it is not generally known.

Accounts from Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 1, Midnight.—The Ministry has just given the following news to the public: On the 30th ult. a series of engagements occurred between McMahon's army and the enemy near the city of Mezieres, lasting from [illegible] A.M. [illegible] troops were attacked by the Prussians from the heights of Stenay, a position we had but recently evacuated, and which the enemy immediately occupied. The attack, which was vigorous at first, forced our army to a retrograde movement, but we soon, at 2 P.M., took the offensive again and retained it till 7 o'clock in the evening, when darkness put an end to operations. After nightfall we recrossed the Meuse in order to form again near Douchery, a few miles east of Mezieres.

The engagements of the first day's fighting have cost us serious losses, although we have inflicted heavy damage on the Prussians.

The Prussians [illegible] the town of Mouzon [illegible] and killed most of the inhabitants. On the 31st the Prussians again [illegible] attacking the left side of the Meuse between the towns of Douzy and Douchery. Our forces slowly retreated until Marshal McMahon drew the Prussians into an angle formed by the ramparts of Sedan and the heights on the left side of the river. Here the Prussians experienced very serious losses and were compelled on account of the murderous fire to retreat. They did so about noon, withdrawing towards [illegible] Montmedy.

After several unsuccessful attempts they at last succeeded in placing themselves on the opposite side of the Meuse. On the morning of the third day McMahon crossed the Meuse at Mouzon.

This furnishes a direct contradiction of the dispatch of the King to Queen Augusta, which announced that he had repulsed the troops under the command of McMahon beyond the Meuse. Everything seems to indicate that the engagement will be renewed to-day [Sept. 1] in the same section of country.

Later Dispatches from Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 2.—The slaughter in the battle of this morning was terrible. The Meuse is filled with dead bodies. The villages of Bazeille, [illegible], Remilly and [illegible] are in flames.

The French captured in Belgium are disarmed and sent to the central Beverl[illegible].

Latest Advices.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The [illegible] this morning admits McMahon's defeat on Tuesday, but claims that he achieved a partial success on Wednesday.

The French commandant at Strasbourg announces that he will continue to hold out against the enemy, even if the city is bombarded both night and day.

[illegible] Sept. 2, [illegible] P.M.—It is reported [illegible] that on Wednesday Bazaine attempted to cut his way out of the fortifications of Metz. The battle lasted all day and evening [illegible] on Thursday morning Bazaine again was driven within the walls. The losses were extremely severe on both sides.

BERLIN, Sept. 2, 11 A.M.—Official news is still behind. It is known that a series of battles occurred [illegible] 30th and 31st, in which [illegible] McMahon [illegible] for the guns of Sedan. He suffered terribly [illegible] passing the Meuse. McMahon [illegible] Wednesday. The battle of Wednesday covered a wide region, that the particulars are confused [illegible]. PARIS, Sept. 2.—[illegible] news has been received here of communication between Bazaine and McMahon.

The death of the Emperor is rumored this afternoon. Particulars are [illegible] that the effect is not marked at exchange.

NOTES ON THE WAR.

The troops passing from Belgium into Prussia are unloaded at the frontier, as the lines are [illegible] on the Belgian side, and it is feared a violent shock might cause an explosion.

After [illegible] battle England [illegible] will intervene for peace. Why not, when by holding off, Prussia may become too strong, or France may reignite the combustibles of a republican conflagration all over the Continent.

A Paris bookseller having applied to a Berlin publisher of lithographic prints for a great number of copies of the portraits of the more illustrious Prussian Generals, received the reply: "There are none; [illegible] we send you the originals."

It is said that Napoleon is astounded at the outrageous frauds of his shoddy contractors for [illegible] his army of all kinds. They have taken his money, but have given him nothing but [illegible] show [illegible]. Here [illegible] is history [illegible] of our late civil war repeating itself even in shoddy.

The Paris papers state that in making experiments recently with the mitrailleuse eight hundred horses have been destroyed, which was followed by such a pestilence in the surrounding villages that the next trial was made upon trees, of which nothing remains but shreds, "hashed up like meat pie," to translate the reporter's expression literally.

Scene on the bank of the Marne. Approach two dejected figures, the elder arrayed in a huge nose and long waxed moustache, man feeling weakness in the back, the younger in smart [illegible] clothes. French sentinel—Qui vive? The old party—[illegible]. The sentinel ejaculated "Cambronne's [illegible]" and let the party pass.

A pair of precocious little damsels at Troy, N. Y., were overheard the other night on the sidewalk exchanging notes on the Franco-Prussian war. "I know," said No. 1, "that France will beat, because the little Prince is with him." "Go away with you," chimed in No. 2. "I know a mighty sight better. The Dutch will whip, for my pa is a Frenchman and my ma is a Dutchman. They fight every night, and ma always licks."

We find in the Cologne Zeitung a patriotic article written by a German lady, in reference to the moral and social effects of the war with France. She gives much excellent advice, and, among other things, strongly expresses her hopes that the stirring up of German animosity against France and the awakening of German spirit and life and feeling will be the means of suppressing throughout Germany the immoral and indecent [illegible] which the French have of late years introduced to German cities.

The completeness of our commissariat during the late rebellion was frequently remarked both at home and abroad. France went to war seemingly ignoring a commissariat and depending wholly on a few days' rations and the élan of her troops. The result has been disastrous; the poor [illegible] in the field subsisting for days on green [illegible] and going into the fight at Metz in a half famished condition. Such shameful imbecility at the head of the French commissariat has doubtless [illegible] in no small degree to the recent reverses of Napoleon's troops.

The Prussian military stores all ready for the outbreak of war at any time, and not necessary [illegible] in a hurry and buy at a disadvantage—were [illegible] stupendous 2,000,000 yards of cloth for uniforms, 3,400,000 pairs of shoes, and of the best quality, as bad shoes will beat a good army, [illegible] 000 knapsacks, 500,000 dozen of shirts, and so on of all the other necessaries. The whole army is amply provided with tents. As soon, however, as the preparations for war began, the work of replenishing the magazines commenced [illegible] to keep up the supply.

The field for the French iron-clads and gunboats in the war against Germany appears to be limited. The approaches to the sea coast, the river mouths and inlets of the North German Confederation are mostly inaccessible to the heavy draught ironclads of the French navy, and against gunboats on all the threatened German rivers it appears they are already provided by lines of [illegible] and by torpedoes with all the latest improvements. Unless, therefore, the French [illegible] squadron can bring that of Prussia to an engagement, it will have but small opportunities for glory in this war.

In the present war, as in previous wars, both parties loudly implore Heaven for triumph. The form of prayer which has been authorized for use in the Lutheran churches of Prussia is very impressive, and a correspondent has described the [illegible] with which the congregations sang Luther's grand hymn "A strong fortress is our God." One of our Paris letters published yesterday describes the Empress Eugenie as a devotee of [illegible] Our Lady of Victory, whom she has just presented with a splendid candelabra. Daily the Empress repairs to the shrine, prays, [illegible] her offering, and departs. It seems, however, that all the victories at the poor shrines in Paris are [illegible] to the masculine population of France.

A curious result of the war is a large number of [illegible] marriages in the Prussian army. In [illegible] a great number of military weddings were performed at [illegible] by express permission of the King, and the special relaxation of the standing order that the banns must be published three times. In Berlin, on the same Sunday, in [illegible] church in that city more than 100 soldiers and their betrothed were bound together in holy matrimony. The object appears to be that though they will necessarily be separated from their young wives during the honeymoon, the husbands have the satisfaction of knowing that in case of their being killed the widows will be adequately provided for by their grateful country.

A Paris letter has [illegible] "My American friend [illegible] before the war [illegible] many a paper [illegible] war [illegible] yet I see by the [illegible] paper [illegible] appointments [illegible] in the army [illegible] all but thirty [illegible]. That is far more aristocratic than in England and in France, as every [illegible] grade even to the Marshal's [illegible] the ranks. Every soldier carries [illegible] knapsack the baton of a Marshal. [illegible] democratic and the French [illegible] effective. None but French [illegible] are allowed to serve in the French army. [illegible] offers on every side [illegible] from Americans, but they have all been declined with thanks."

Saratoga's oldest visitor this season is Rev. Henry Boehm, who was born of German parentage near Lancaster, [illegible] and is consequently now 95 years old. In 1799 he became a [illegible] preacher of the M. E. Church, in which service he has ridden over 100,000 miles on horseback. This is his second visit to Saratoga, the first having occurred in [illegible], when there was neither hotel nor dwelling house in that place and but a single spring was known.

Inconsistent Champions of Labor

The man whom the repudiation Democracy wear in their heart of hearts (George H Pendleton of Ohio) having exhausted himself in his endeavors to plant his party [illegible] on his greenback and repudiation theories and failed to become President of the United States or Governor of Ohio, in that [illegible] is now understood to have mounted the Chinese hobby horse to essay an other political [illegible]. We give a specimen of his utterances remarking that they sound strange coming from a man who always contended for slave labor pure and simple without any wages at all

> But the Chinese will give us cheap labor. CHEAP HUMAN LABOR, I despise the word. It signifies a crime and a shame. It signifies squalor, degradation, ignorance and vice. Are not laborers men—our fellow men? They have bodies to clothe, and stomachs to feed, and minds to educate, and spirits to elevate and old age to provide for. They have homes which they love, and wives whom they cherish and children whom they hope to make worthy citizens—the honest fathers and virtuous mothers of a succeeding generation. And can you remember these duties and see these aspirations, can you contemplate the patient hopefulness of cheerful and contented because fairly compensated industry, and talk of CHEAP LABOR? Labor is too cheap now

The person not acquainted with the American demagogue might find it difficult to believe that the man who talks in this strain was the persistent advocate and upholder of a system which brought slave labor absolutely unpaid, in direct competition with the free white labor of the country. Cheap human labor was a term which Mr Pendleton and his party once did not despise. On the contrary they devoted themselves for years to extension of the system of unpaid labor throughout the United States

Again, will it be credited that the man who talks as above is in favor of opening the ports of the United States to the productions of this very cheap labor elsewhere free of duties, knowing as he does, that it would break down the entire labor system of the country. What are the Democracy constantly doing, but decrying our own factories and workshops, and lauding the pauper work of foreign countries? Who so boisterous against every effort to protect the industry of America? What can we say that would do justice to a party that aims at the destruction of the entire laboring interest of America by withdrawing all protection from it? The Pendletons of the party will be hard pushed to make an argument against Chinese immigration, that shall not kick over their whole free trade hobby

Why It is Wanted

It is well known that the average rate of assessment throughout the State is hardly more than one third the actual value of property. This makes a poor showing abroad, and causes our rate of taxation to seem higher than it ought. People from abroad whether from Europe or our Eastern States, are thus doubtless to some extent deterred from coming here with their property. Apparently there is ground for this, but what are the facts? Our State and county taxes are from two to two and a half per cent. per annum. In the cities it is something like one per cent greater. But when it is remembered that property is not taxed at half its actual value the case is greatly changed. Strangers, however, may not be aware of this. Of course it makes no difference to those who pay, whether the assessor rates their property at a quarter, or half, or its whole value, provided all are assessed alike, for there is so much money to be raised, and each must or should pay according to his property. But under the present system, as we have often heretofore pointed out, much injustice is done by the action of some of the counties in trying to evade their just proportion of State tax.

By a State Board of Equalization all the faults of this system may be remedied. County assessments should be raised to a proper standard, and we would be able to make better showing and impression abroad. That would certainly double, perhaps treble, the amount of property for the purposes of taxation, and the duty of the Board would be to see that every county was rated for its proper proportion of State taxes. These considerations will suffice to show why such a Board is wanted, though the subject might be much enlarged upon

In commenting on the position assumed by the Democratic press of the United States in reference to the European war a contemporary says it is the logic of their record for years past and asks "Why should they pray for the success of the great nationality that prayed for our success in that dark hour? While the Democracy were preaching repudiation and depreciating our currency and our securities, the Germans were upholding our credit, investing in our bonds and sending thousands of their sons to till our fields and build our towns. And while Napoleon was plotting our overthrow and up to the very last moment holding out hopes to the Democratic rebels of a recognition of the Confederacy, Germany was speaking, through Baron Gerolt the Prussian Minister at Washington, the steady and earnest God speed of its sovereign and its people. Is not this true? Does not every American know it? Can Americans so soon forget how unfairly and unjustly the French Government dealt with us during the dark days of our great rebellion?"

Nearly all the Democratic journals of the United States and notably the New York World warmly espoused the cause of the French at the beginning of the war and became strong partisans of Napoleon. But German victories have brought some of them round to a different way of thinking. Even the World fearful of alienating the Germans in the Democratic party is changing its front. But the fact remains the same. The intelligent American as well as the German who has made his home here says the Philadelphia Press, can draw his own inference

In the Philadelphia Press of the 20th of August there appears an excellent letter on Oregon, written by a person to whom our State was new and whose impressions of it were very favorable. The publication of such letters in Eastern journals of wide circulation is of great advantage to our State. We do not know who the author of this particular letter is but can say that he has written a letter about Oregon which is full of information and instruction for Eastern readers

In the list of members of the Legislature which we published yesterday some errors occurred. A H Brown not S. Ison is Senator elect for Baker county. Also the names of J W Baldwin Senator for Grant and H Porter member of the House for Baker were inadvertently and erroneously printed in Roman instead of italics thus making them appear as Republicans. We print the list again to-day properly corrected

Murderous Fighting

The battles on the Belgian frontier are hotly contested and result in immense slaughter. Though the accounts are somewhat conflicting it is evident that the Germans have the advantage and are making general progress. Yet the French fight stubbornly and are by no means disheartened. The presence of [illegible] French [illegible] people and [illegible] they have set [illegible] drawn up [illegible]. Though the general advantage is obviously with the Germans the defeat of the French has not been converted into a rout and they retire from one position to renew the fight at another. It is a war in which the combatants are nearly matched [illegible] and promises to be even more bloody still before it is brought to an end.

The French bulletins claim some advantages but as usual the accounts are vague and wanting in reliability. If they hold their ground they consider it a victory; if they are driven but not utterly routed they declare that they have terribly punished their enemies and claim a substantial advantage. The latest dispatch received from Paris asserts positively that McMahon has succeeded in reaching Bazaine and that the forces of the two marshals are united. This if true is a great point gained. It is what the French have been maneuvering and fighting for during many days and explains the action of McMahon in withdrawing to a position near the Belgium frontier and in fighting so persistently in the direction of Montmedy, Longwy and Thionville. Yet we greatly doubt whether the two marshals have actually effected a junction as reported. News from French sources as has been often found in the course of this war is not much to be relied on

News from German sources is also meager. We have a bulletin from the King of Prussia in which he says that McMahon has been driven back to Sedan, though no great triumph is claimed. French advices directly contradict this, but impartial observers of both sides have learned that the dispatches from Prussian headquarters are far more truthful than those from French sources. King William has so far published no bulletins except such as have afterwards proved true. That he does not now claim a decisive triumph with complete rout of the French, we take as better proof that the French have not suffered a very great disaster than is furnished by anything they have said for themselves

A large part of the news comes from Belgium and may be taken as impartial and truthful. The tenor of this news confirms other reports of French reverses though we have an account also from Belgium sources that Bazaine and McMahon have formed a junction

France now will rally and put every man into the field and the German reserves will be hurried up. A month more of this murderous fighting will probably incline both sides to pause. At this rate they will soon kill men enough to exhaust each other. The French if they can succeed in defending their own territory, will now be satisfied and the Germans may after a while grow chary of pushing dense masses of men up in strong positions with such terrible loss of life. The war will hardly close without the interposition of other powers but even if it should be a drawn contest which is the most favorable result that could now be anticipated for France, the arrogance of that country will have been very thoroughly chastised

The London Financial Chronicle argues against the probability of the war being a short one. Napoleon it says, is not the French nation which it is argued will never consent to a humiliating peace. Even if a Republic should follow the dethronement of Napoleon the conquest of the nation and the mutilation of its territory could be accomplished only after a long and exhaustive war. From the determined valor with which the French are fighting it is possible that this view may be near the truth

By recent amendments of the revenue laws the taxes were reduced more than $75,000,000. Yet these measures met the almost united opposition of the Democrats in Congress who sought to throw the odium of high taxation on the Republicans. They succeeded very well in bringing that odium on themselves

Railroads in the Present European War

From the New York Herald

There are few who will contest the assertion that had no railroads existed in the United States the recent great struggle between the North and South, if terminated at all in favor of the Union, would have required many more years of painful sacrifice. In the war of 1812 with Great Britain it cost six weeks delay and many times the present value of a barrel of flour to convey such a barrel from New York to Lake Erie. In 1861 the numbers of men, the quantity of stores and the tremendous paraphernalia of war conveyed in a day or two to scenes of action hundreds of miles distant amazed the world. As early as 1859 the French had done marvelous things in this way when they assisted the Italians against Austria. In eighty six days—that is to say from the 10th of April to the 5th of July—they transported 104,351 men and 129,227 horses on their various railroads and of these the Lyons road alone threw 227,619 men and 36,358 horses upon the Italian frontiers. Upon our own achievements in that line it is needless to dwell while they are so fresh in the memory of all our observant citizens. But in 1866 when operating against Austria the Prussians far excelled all previous examples in the celerity of their advance by rail. [illegible] In twenty days they transported 197,000 men, 55,000 horses and 5,300 wagons in perfect condition over lines [illegible] varying from 120 to 300 miles, though less than the average of the space over which their armies now have to be moved in prosecuting the invasion of France. [illegible] be on the side of the [illegible] and the perfection of military science consist in massing [illegible] power for [illegible] on the right point at the right moment, this immense [illegible] by means of steam and railroads, [illegible] the great standard [illegible] upon the result. But it is quite surprising to recall the opposition that this view [illegible] every intelligent [illegible] only thirty years ago. At that time it was contended in Europe that the same means of transportation could not be used for day's journeys of 200 miles. Then great loss of time by change of cars and many fearful accidents were predicted but all these [illegible] proved fallacious. Time, money, food, clothing, health and discipline were all found to be vastly economized and as for casualties the proportion was found to be far less than in the old foot marching system. Infantry and their munitions and equipments are handled much more rapidly than cavalry and artillery. In Germany the car intended for the transportation of troops, horses and batteries are provided with from three or four axles and six to eight wheels. Each axle is calculated to bear the weight of from twenty to twenty five men or two to three fully equipped horses. One field piece or one army wagon is reckoned for every two axles or two pieces or wagons to every three axles. For the heavier trains two locomotives are employed both pulling, or one pulling and the other pushing. Such a [illegible] train say the military journals of Prussia with from thirty to thirty cars will convey a battalion of [illegible] with their ammunition wagons and the horses of the [illegible] cars [illegible] from thirty to thirty are well [illegible] a battery of field artillery of six guns and two howitzers, leaving half of the ammunition wagons and the two leaders of every six horse team to follow in [illegible] or a squadron of one hundred and fifty mounted men and one hundred and sixty horses, the riders accompanying their animals. A [illegible] requires only a [illegible] the conclusion is that a division of [illegible] eight battalions, two regiments of cavalry and two batteries in the [illegible] hundred and twenty miles in a long summer's day on a double track and turnouts existing and all things in good order. This at least is about the rate at which the Prussians have moved toward the Rhine, only that by [illegible] they managed to get nearly twenty [illegible] through on each rail and line in the twenty four hours. Thus in the lapse of ten days they presented two hundred thousand men on their frontier in addition to such troops as they had already in station near the scene

Thus [illegible] time and distance are alike [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] in the same proportion. Lightning [illegible] the order, steam conveys the [illegible] and chemistry strike the blow. Armies smitten as it were by the blazing sword of the archangel melt away in a flash of light and a wreath of smoke, and empires founded upon [illegible] are swept from the [illegible]. Those only which are rooted in the hearts of men and established on the firm rock of truth survive

The Great Admiral

From the N Y Independent

[illegible] the veteran [illegible] many [illegible] victorious in [illegible] battles and [illegible] for sixty years [illegible] has furled his sails and dropped his anchor in the port of [illegible]. The [illegible] soldier in the revolution and a mother who knew how to defend her cabin against the savages, his whole life was worthy the patriotism of his father and the courage of his mother. He was only a little past ten years of age when he left the Tennessee mountains to enter the navy and his career began in the distinguished courage and coolness of little Midshipman Farragut only eleven years of age in the brave battle of the brig Essex in Valparaiso harbor, against two British vessels. After showing the unflinching courage of a man in the desperate fight, he cried like a child as he was at the disappointment and defeat. His naval career blossomed thus early. Its ripe fruitage was only gathered half a century later in another generation and in a civil war. Promising greatness in boyhood, achieving greatness in old age, the most of his life was passed in the monotonous routine of navy-yard and cruising service. It is only by the conjunction of two planets the man and the opportunity—that a hero is produced. But that which conjoined to opportunity makes the man a hero must make the man excellent at all times and Farragut getting his promotions by the slow process of seniority, waiting through half a century for the vacancies made by deaths and dismissals to rise through the different grades was always faithful, diligent, excellent, in every duty assigned him. He availed himself of leisure on shore to study, he made use of the opportunities afforded by cruising duty to acquire the fluent use not only of French, Spanish and Italian but even of Arabic. The fifty years of obscurity, between the brave boy at Valparaiso and the great commander at New Orleans was a half century of diligent preparation

When the rebellion began Farragut was off duty at his home in Norfolk, Virginia. A native of Tennessee educated in the conservatism of the navy married to a Southern lady and a resident of Virginia it was to have been expected that the ties of nativity, kinship, marriage and residence would carry the veteran commander with the South. At a time when even trusted men like Robert E Lee deserted their colors under the delusion of allegiance to State governments, when the navy and army alike seemed to be falling to pieces with the division of sentiment among the officers, it would have been no more than natural for Farragut to have the entreaties of kindred and the persuasions of leaders, and to have cast in his lot with his friends. But he who wept at eleven to see the flag go down from the peak of the Essex could not tear it down at sixty and in the midst of persuasions and threats alike unheeded, he journeyed with his family in peril of his life through mob ridden Baltimore to a Northern home. He might have rested now after a long and useful career but on the contrary he hastened to Washington and offered himself at sixty to fight for his country

How he fought we know. How he fought every school boy in after generations shall tell. How he broke the great iron chain that fettered the Mississippi, how he bombarded Fort Jackson, how he sailed into the midst of that horrible hail of shot and shrapnel and shells from forts and batteries and ships and iron clads, how in the utter darkness of that yet undawned April morning he was found fighting with rams and fire rafts—fighting undaunted when his flag ship was aground and [illegible] sank the enemy's vessels, sending even the iron coated ram Manassas to the bottom, and how the foresight and skill of the great commander achieved the victory and carried the fleet through with small loss and planted the flag again in the proud Southern metropolis, are not all these written in history

A simple man without imagination and with no taste for dramatic display he was all the time doing the most dramatic things. Great actions on a great stage always impress the imagination. Where in the history of naval warfare is there anything more striking than Admiral Farragut's battle in the dark at New Orleans? And what more exciting than that stealthy creeping of the steamers in the night past the Port Hudson batteries with the decks of the boats whitewashed to enable the gunners to distinguish the piles of shot and shell? Add to this the sudden discovery of the boats, the lighting of the Confederate bonfire, the converging and [illegible] of the batteries, which allowed but two boats to get by

But this incidental dramatic effect in the life of an unpretending man came out most impressively at Mobile where the old Admiral stood in the maintop of the Hartford [illegible] the [illegible] under fire from shore and sea, directing the movements of the iron clads and gunboats that battled away at the almost impenetrable sheath of the great ram Tennessee attacking the formidable monster like hounds assaulting a furious wild beast. And when his flag ship was run into and the cry came [illegible] the Admiral [illegible] the old man in the maintop [illegible] thundered out "Go on with speed [illegible] ram her again"

[illegible] to [illegible] the success of our arms it would be hard to estimate. Congress and the country thanked him and made the rank of vice admiral for him and [illegible] still higher rank of admiral for him. Crowds [illegible] him he was everywhere hailed [illegible] as one of the deliverers of his country and his fellow countrymen mourn him with the sincerest grief. He lived to the allotted threescore and ten and spent sixty of his seventy years in the naval service of his country. He won distinction in a foreign war in [illegible] he achieved glory in a [illegible] war in defending [illegible] faithful [illegible] glorious

San Francisco papers [illegible] that the [illegible] is still there [illegible] Dollar stores established twenty five cent departments and even fish [illegible] filled with [illegible] and [illegible] grin [illegible] labeled [illegible] anything on the board for [illegible] cents. [illegible] cheap restaurants advertise [illegible] for ten cents. [illegible] down to twenty five cents a week. All this is an indication of the leveling that [illegible] going on and brought about by the railroad. Some of us have made a mistake. We thought the East would come to us and pay our prices. Just as I, the East comes to us and is forcing us to pay its prices. It is time. We have too long lived on '49' recollections. Three fourths of the gold we now gather from our scraped, scarred and honey combed hills goes straight to the East. To Europe or to China as if shot thither through a pneumatic tube. We must like Zacheus up a tree come down.

THE M. E. CHURCH.

DESCRIPTION OF THE BUILDING.

The Taylor street M. E. Church which is to be dedicated to-morrow, was begun in 1866. It is thus described by the Advocate:

It is sixty seven feet front across the vestibule, 107 feet deep from face to face of the walls, including towers and recess in the rear. The basement is large, commodious, well lighted, and is twelve feet high in the clear. The audience room is fifty two feet wide, and eighty four feet long including the recess, and is thirty six feet high from the floor to the crown of the arched ceiling. The trench walls and pier foundations are of quarry stone laid in mortar. The walls above the stone foundation are of brick and are twenty-four inches thick to the floor of the audience room, and twenty inches thick to the wall plate. The butresses are built hollow, with openings at the top and bottom for ventilation.

Gallery anchors have been planted in the walls so that a gallery can be put in hereafter, if desirable.

There are two towers, one sixty-eight feet in height, the other ninety-three feet, the buttresses completed by four finials, and from the crown of which the spire rises eighty-three feet. The pinacle of the spire is formed by a finial surmounted by a globe, which is one hundred and seventy six feet from the sidewalk.

All the openings in the audience room are arched. The front window is thirty-five feet high and twenty two feet wide. Ground glass, with a small and exceedingly chaste figure, has been used for the windows, except the ornamental portions, which are colored. The glass was purchased for the Trustees by Dr. Benson, of the California Advocate.

The lighting of the church is by Schmidlin & Driscoll's five foot ceiling reflectors, and were manufactured expressly for the church. They are duplicates of those used in the Cooper Institute, and were ordered made for the church by John C. Bloomfield of New York, to whom the Trustees gave discretionary power to purchase the best reflectors in use. The effect is very fine, and this manner of lighting a church is used now for the first time on the Pacific coast.

The audience room will seat from seven to nine hundred. The seats are all cushioned and the floor entirely carpeted.

Another novel feature in this church, at least for Oregon, is that the organ and choir will be back of the pulpit, in order that the choir and congregation shall face each other.

The walls are finished plain, the intention of the Trustees being to fresco when they become furnished.

W. W. Page furnished a marble tablet, which will be placed immediately beneath the large window, bearing the inscription: "Methodist Episcopal Church; Organized in 1818."

The plan of the edifice was by J. Nestor, who furnished the plan and superintended the erection of the walls and construction of the roof.

Passengers from California for Portland.—The steamship Oriflamme, Metzger, commander, sailed from San Francisco yesterday, with the following named passengers:

Miss Jessie D Carr, George Tichnor and family, E B Moore and family, J K Hayden and family, Charles Royce, P D Nesbach, Mrs M R Wright, J W Wadsworth, C McC Reeve, W J Adams, Capt Adams, U S A, J Meyer, Col R S Williams, Lieut W H Huer, C T Brown, D F Harrington and family, Wm Cassidy, J C Mann and wife, L P W Quimby and family, Wm Harmon, T Tierney and family, Wm Church, T W Waldron, H A Gaston, Gov G L Woods, Dr Fowler, S Redlich, P Selling, W G C Chapman and family, J L Gutty, and family, J K Page, W D Plants, M M Porterfield, J A Haynes and family, Miss C E Bachelder, Mrs T Montieth and five children, J G Wright, W Currier, F Bidwell, Miss M Moran, Mrs M Beaumont, Wm Aldridge and wife, H Owens, Robert Meinke, Samuel Gilman and wife, W J Blimm, J Gosliner, Dr D C Teeple, twelve others, and sixty-eight in the steerage.

Plaza Concert.—Programme of the Twenty-third Infantry band, Saturday afternoon, September 3d, 6:30 P. M.:

1. Army Combination March.
2. Polka "Eva."
3. Oh! Summer Night, from Don Pasquale.
4. Quadrille, from Il Trovatore.
5. Waltz, Beautiful Belles.
6. Drinking Song, from Lucrezia Borgia.
7. Schottische, Beautiful Dreamer.
8. Galop, "Mount Hood."

Failure of Grafts.—Pomologists inform us that a large per cent. of the grafts planted the last spring have failed, in consequence, as is supposed, of the lack of sap in the stocks. This is the first failure of the kind known to orchardists and nurserymen within a period of eighteen years. The death of many well grown trees—also an unusual occurrence—is attributed to the heat of the summer months. Tons of apples and other fruits have been spoiled by baking on the trees.

A Huge Watermelon.—This office is indebted to Mr. John Powell, of Columbia Slough, for a huge watermelon—almost as huge as a yearling calf. We have seen no larger one from either Eastern Oregon or California, nor a better one. The Wallamet Valley can't be beat in this line, and there is no use to try.

Portland Academy.—This instituiton will open its fall term on Monday next, under the charge of Prof. Rodgers. The building is undergoing a course of repairs and painting.

Board of Delegates.—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Delegates of the Fire Department, will be held at the Council Chamber this evening.

Hall Street M. E. Church.—In consequence of the dedication of the Taylor street church to-morrow, there will be no services at the Hall street church.

CURRENT NOTES.

The Northern Pacific railroad is to have its sole terminus at Duluth, Wis., during the six years ensuing, in consideration of procuring the land, to be occupied by stores, without cost.

The new issue of bonds for the funding of the public debt to the extent of fifteen millions of dollars will consume sixty tons weight of paper. The paper has been specially prepared for this purpose.

The London Times announces that after the 1st of October next it will receive subscribers who may desire to get their paper through the post-office. During the last half century or more it has refused to receive subscriptions.

O'Fallon & Hatch, wealthy New Orleans merchants, have purchased in Scott county, Mo., a tract of 50,000 acres of unimproved land lying upon both sides of the Iron Mountain railroad. The price paid was $100,000, cash down.

What protection has done for the industries of the country is exampled in the present position of our woolen manufactures. We now consume $250,000,000 worth of woolen manufactures, or of those of which wool is the chief component, per annum. Of this amount we manufacture at home $175,000,000 worth. The demand of the wool growers for a protective tariff has been the salvation of this important industry.

The Japan Gazette says that the French Consul is reported to have sent the following ultimatum to the Chinese government: First, that 500 of the Tientsin barbarians should be decapitated before properly authorized French representatives. Secondly, an indemnity of 100,000,000 of francs be paid down for the representatives of the deceased, and the restoration of property. Thirdly, that a French force be re-established in Tientsin and the Taku forts for a certain number of years at the expense of the Chinese government.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a statement of receipts of flour and grain which shows that she is behind both Milwaukee and Toledo, and "is the third wheat market on the northern lakes instead of the first." In its bitterness the Tribune says: "When the harbor improvement of Calumet is completed, and a few elevators are built there, we suppose Chicago will be the fourth in the list, unless the Calumet elevators should be owned and operated by the Chicago combination." Now let Cincinnati and St. Louis crow!

The great railroad era has dawned upon this State. The locomotive whistle is already heard in our midst. The North Pacific railroad have a regiment of engineers and surveyors in the field, and will soon have thousands of men constructing the road. Hundreds of new settlers are arriving every month to fill up our State and develop her resources. But it matters not how many come, Kohn & Fleish will be ready for them with all kinds of Clothing and Staple goods. They are constantly receiving fresh supplies by every steamer, so their stock cannot be exhausted. Call and see them at their old stand on Front street.

Among the Johnsons of Philadelphia, is Sam. He corresponds with his maternal uncle, Mr. Nat. Thompson. The former addresses his letters to "Gnat Thompsing, Esq.," while the latter directs his correspondence to "Psalm Johnsing." As a piece of tit for tat, this isn't every day to be taken down.

An Irishman decapitated a turtle, and afterward was amusing himself by putting sticks into its mouth, which it bit with violence. A lady who saw the proceeding exclaimed: "Why, Pat, I thought the turtle was dead?" "So it is, ma'am, but the crather's not sensible of it."

"How about the small pox excitement up your way?" asked one countryman of another. "Oh, was the reply, "it is dying out with the patients."

In the head lines to a Columbia dispatch, in the Cincinnati Gazette of a recent date, reads "Democrats in Council—Safe Blown Open."

A man who went fishing in a private pond complains that he only got one bite and that was from a dog whose master owns the pond.

Ezra Haskell, of Troy, New York, suicided on Thursday, to get rid of the heat. He had, it seems, every confidence as to his future.

Spiritual Grove Meeting.—At Butteville, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9th, 10th and 11th. Good speakers have been secured for the occasion. The P. T. boats will carry passengers to and fro for half price. They will also dispatch an extra boat on Sunday for the benefit of those wishing to go on that day.

Wild Cherry Balsam.—The memory of Dr. Wistar is embalmed in the hearts of thousands whom his Balsam of Wild Cherry has cured of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, or some other form of Pulmonary disease.

Portland Fire Department.—The regular meeting of the Board of Delegates of the Portland Fire Department, will be held at the Council Chamber this (Saturday) evening, at 8 o'clock.

The Life Sustaining Principle.

The vital and the muscular systems are entirely distinct from each other. A man may have the brawn of a Hercules, but if he is deficient in the vital energy he will not wear as well, or last as long or be as healthy and happy while he does last, as the man of ordinary or even slender build, who possesses a larger share of this animating principle. One of the greatest recommendations of that pure vegetable Invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is that it increases the vital force of the system. No medicine can double the volume of a man's muscle, or thicken and vulcanize his thews and sinews; but Hostetter's Bitters has an effect much more important. Its use promotes constitutional vigor. It re-inforces the life-power, of which bone and sinew and muscle are merely the instruments, holding the same relation to it that machinery does to steam. Let the slight and apparently fragile take heart, they may have more stamina though far less physical strength, than the broad shouldered athletes they regard with envy. To restore, to sustain, to increase this staminal principle which, when in full supply, is the source of health and the best guarantee of longevity, is a special property of the famous restorative. It is not only a specific for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent fevers, constipation, &c., and a preventive of all diseases of a malarious character, but the best of all medicines for strengthening the constitution and awakening the powers of nature from whatever cause they may have become lethargic.

Temperance men admit its utility. No attempt has ever been made or ever will be made to disguise the character of Plantation Bitters. It contains alcohol; and no Bitters that does not contain alcohol is worth a rush. Water will neither preserve the virtues of tonic vegetables nor render them active in the system. This is a chemical fact which no one competent to deliver an opinion on the subject will deny. Water tonics turn sour on the stomach, if they are not sour to begin with, (which is frequently the case,) and produce and promote indigestion instead of curing it. Let it therefore be distinctly understood that Plantation Bitters is an alcohol restorative. But mark this: it is strictly a medicine, not a beverage. It is to be taken in limited quantities and at stated times, like other remedies and antidotes, and therefore its use is in accordance with temperance law, as well with that "higher law" which renders it incumbent upon every being gifted with reason to resort to the best possible means of accomplishing a salutary end.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

PORTLAND, Thursday, Sept. 2, 1870.

Gold at New York 116¾.

Legal Tenders quotable at 87¼@88.

Rates of interest, at the banks, 1 per cent. for 30 and 90 day loans. Outside rates 1½@2 per cent.

U. S. 5-20 bonds of 1862 and 1867, 94@95c.

Exchange on San Francisco, par. On New York 1½c premium.

Oregon bounty and relief bonds, 90c.

San Francisco legal tender rate 87@88.

Collection day, occurring this week, shows the money market moderately easy. The reports from both San Francisco and New York are to the effect that money is in good supply and that interest rates are gradually getting lower.

In the merchandise market we have no new features to note. The aggregate of trade for the week has been very fair considering the season. Our jobbers are preparing for a lively fall trade soon to open, advices from all points indicating that large supplies of all lines of goods will be wanted. Stocks of all sorts are unusually large and assortments are full.

The Produce market is dull. Demand for grain light, and prices weak. The prospects for foreign markets do not warrant the payment of the figures asked by the farmers, and consequently there is little or nothing doing. Eighty-five cents is the highest we hear offered for large lots of wheat, though 90c has been paid for some small lots of very choice white.

The San Francisco Commercial Herald of the 27th ult., has the following on the grain question:

"The receipts of Grain from the interior, since the incoming of the harvest, July 1st, exhibit a considerable diminution as compared with the same period last year. This fact is not chargeable altogether to lessened crops, but to the general complexion of markets, both at home and abroad. When the European war first broke out, prices of Wheat and Flour in Liverpool at once jumped up considerably, and our people made up their minds that high prices would be the ruling feature upon this coast, and governed themselves accordingly. It is true prices for a short period did advance, but this rise was more than offset by ship-owners, who at once advanced freights beyond all reason, so that farmers were deprived of any benefits likely to accrue from the advanced rates of Wheat abroad. English orders in hand for Breadstuffs could not be executed within limits, and before shippers could turn themselves, the English Wheat market began to show signs of weakness. Prices have now fallen from 12s—the ruling Liverpool quotation July 21—down to 10s 6d at date. The rate of freight to Liverpool July 21 was nominally £3, and Wheat $2 00@1 90. To-day freights to Liverpool are £2 15s, and Wheat $1 65@1 70. Now then, at these reduced quotations business is greatly restricted, and English orders with difficulty filled within purchasing limits. The result is very apparent in our lessened receipts and offerings, farmers preferring to hold their grain, and to this end are filling up warehouses to an extent seldom before equaled. They do not send their grain to the city, but store it at points inland. Napa county, where the crops were fine—a full average—has hardly marketed any Wheat up to this date—it is all in store. So, also, at Suisun, Stockton, Hayward, Woodland, and other central places of embarkation. The warehouses are filled to repletion, besides great quantities are corded and stacked up along the line of railroads. The export demand for Flour is now much less in proportion than that of Wheat. The reason given is not creditable to our millers. Complaints come to us from various marts abroad that the Extra Flour sent out last year upon orders was not generally up to the standard—was inferior, not up to promised requirements; consequently some of the orders which would otherwise have come here have been sent to Chile. This result is unexpected to millers, and ought to learn them a lesson to keep up uniform standards at all hazards, and if perchance they get hold of a poor lot of Wheat, to put some other brand upon it rather than lower the reputation of California Extras. There certainly is no excuse for making poor Flour this year, even were such the case last season. There certainly are no better flouring mills on this continent than are to be found in this city. The Golden Gate, Golden Age, and National Mills have certainly the [illegible] for making the very best silk-dressed Flour. We have, besides, other mills furnishing Flour of superior quality, both in this State and Oregon, without there is really no excuse, and should be no cause for complaint. Within the past fortnight about 10,000 bbls superfine Flour, low grades, have been taken for shipment to China in the Sea Serpent, at the low freight of $4 00 per ton. Barley, under lessened supplies and a fair export demand for Peru, is a shade higher, while Oats, on the contrary, favor the buyer.

Our shipments of produce from the 1st of January to the 1st of September were—Flour, qr sks, 306,893; Wheat, sks, 39,250; Oats, sks, 14,447; Salmon, bbls, 1,477; hf-bbls, 2,642; cs, 16,278; pkgs, 123; Bacon, pkgs, 3,031; Beef, bbls, 60; Butter, pkgs, 1,489; Hams, pkgs, 687; Lard, pkgs, 1,121; Pork, bbls, 2,315; Dried Apples, pkgs, 2,476.

Of provisions, the above authority says:

The next Panama steamer will bring up, en route from New York to Hongkong, 250 bbls Pork. This Pork was ordered through parties in this city, who inform us that the same will very likely, if any more than if sent from here direct. [illegible] following our last issue, an invoice of 5,000 lbs Eastern Hams and Sides sold at 18 cents. Since then we are informed of return shipments to Oregon. That market having been stripped by the liberal shipments to this city. Prices in our market are higher in [illegible] than there. This must soon result in higher prices being realized for California cured. There is but a jobbing demand for Beef and Pork, and for these prices are quite firm. Lard is in good demand, with but a [illegible] Eastern here. California Butter [illegible] the market, although there is rather more call for Western; but transactions, be they of old or new, are not considerable in quantity as to be noteworthy. We notice, Prices cover a wide range, say 17@37½c for Western Reserve in firkins. Best New York [illegible] is held at 25@30c without sales. Cheese is very [illegible], and the quality of the California product steadily improving. We note the arrival this week overland of 400 cases New York Factory Cheese, order and quality unknown, while at 16@18c. The fact is, our dairymen turn out but little of equal quality, rendering it necessary for the trade to import more or less Eastern for [illegible] customers, who are willing to pay an extra price.

[illegible], hams and lard—California supplies are free, and go far to [illegible] the current demand, within the range of 15@16c. Oregon bacon have been advanced to 17@18c, with sales to some extent.

[illegible]—The local butter supplies goes far to meet our current trade requirement, though some in [illegible], including resident bakers, are now turning their attention to supplies from the east, making [illegible] to suit their special trade wants upon their [illegible]. Importers generally are disgusted with the [illegible] having lost its prestige, the business now partaking purely of a jobbing character. California cheese [illegible], the latter rate for factory dairies. Oregon [illegible] abundant, selling at 32½@35c. The [illegible] of 90 bbls eggs from Chicago came to a market [illegible] to have arrived in a bad condition, as was also the illinois lot received at the same time.

Freighting to Southeastern Oregon and Idaho.

[From the S. F. Commercial.]

A sharp discussion has for some months past been stirring up between the Columbia river and the Central Pacific Railroad route for the carrying trade of Southeastern Oregon and Central Idaho, the river route having previously monopolized the most of this business. Latterly the scale has begun to turn in favor of the railroad, as affording more expedition, and to many parts of the State, cheaper transportation. The brief period for which Snake river is navigable to Lewiston—only a few months in the year—and the near approach of the season when communication over the Blue and the Bitter Root ranges of mountains is likely to be impeded by snow, have also tended to increase shipments by rail, goods thus sent not being exposed to detention from this cause at any season of the year.

From Kelton, now the principal point on the railroad from which freights are forwarded to Idaho, the road is at all times a good one, being nearly level, tolerably well supplied with grass and water, has but little sand upon it, and is never seriously obstructed by snow. The only place where there is trouble on this account is in the Goose Creek Mountains, where carriage has to be done on runners for a month or two in the winter, though the snow is never more than two or three feet deep. A new and shorter road has been opened, avoiding these mountains, and on which there is no snow to interfere with wagon travel, affording uninterrupted communication between Kelton and Idaho all the year round.

The distance from Kelton to Boise City is about 240 miles, the rates of freight averaging three cents per pound between these two places in summer and three and a half in winter, which is something less than the prices paid for hauling from navigable points on the Columbia to that place, while the time is also less by the former than by the latter route. It may, therefore, be expected that all freight destined for Idaho, except the extreme northern part, will hereafter go forward by the Kelton route; that for southeastern Oregon leaving the railroad at points further west. During the earlier part of the present season the freight bills of a single forwarding house at Kelton amounted to nearly $10,000 per month—a sum that it is expected will be increased the coming fall. How rapidly this branch of business has grown up at this point may be inferred from the fact that it is only about a year and a half since it was first inaugurated.

PROPOSALS.

Proposals for Trees and Shrubs for National Military Cemeteries.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., 17th August, 1870.

PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLYING TREES AND Shrubs for ornamental planting of the National Cemeteries are invited from nurseries and gardeners in good standing.

The trees and shrubs should be securely packed and delivered at the railroad station most convenient to the garden or nursery. Bills and bills of lading, properly addressed, to be furnished.

The freight will be paid by the United States, and the bills will be settled upon receipt of the trees and shrubs at the places to which they may be consigned.

The orders will be given by the officer in charge of national cemeteries in this office upon estimates or requisitions from local officers.

It is suggested that the most convenient form of proposal will be a printed catalogue, with such discounts on the whole or on any classes or kinds of plants as the proprietor may be willing to offer.

Purchases will be made wherever most advantage to the United States upon the basis of the proposals thus received.

There are about eighty (80) national military cemeteries scattered over the whole United States, and some planting will probably be needed in each of them.

Proposals should be sealed and addressed to the Quartermaster General's Office, marked "Proposals for Trees and Shrubs," and they will be opened at noon on the 19th of September, 1870.

SECURE A HOME!!

THE RIVERSIDE

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON,

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened, and a large number of Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will give a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc., etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception, (the Portland Homestead Association,) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes, and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands, consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals—shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them,) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square, (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that everything is co-operative, and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property, by some chance, should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself; but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood, and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two, it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share, payable with the first installment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month; so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes, and one homestead—the "Riverside," just south of East Portland—has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a little above the other prong of the H, but is still forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and the Willamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with light or timber. A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, with an avenue between them, connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described) with that on the east. This last tract of land is in a beautiful little valley, which is now under a high state of cultivation. Through its whole length runs a trout brook, the water of which is clear as crystal. With hydraulic rams the Association proposes to have water conveyed through pipes to every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.
